Department of Japanese Language and Literature

I decided to study at Gakushuin University because my Taiwanese friend attended its Short-term Summer Japanese Language Programme and raved about the university, including its atmosphere. The focus of my studies is Japanese language, but my studies also cover a range of other subjects, such as Korean, English, and gender. Gakushuin University has many students who are cheerful and friendly and has an active extracurricular programme. I joined the dance club, and I enjoy my days dancing and eating with friends I made at the club. At the events organized by the International Centre, you can also interact closely with other international and Japanese students. The events are great since they help improve my language skills.

Information on Student Exchange

Exchange Programmes

Gakushuin University has agreements with 63 universities around the world. We promote the implementation of student exchange programmes and the acceptance of visiting researchers from most of the partner universities.

DAILY LIFE at

→ Gakushuin gives meaning to studying in Japan

Excellent for Developing Japanese Language Skills

Gakushuin University has an excellent learning environment. We have Japanese language classes for international students matching their level of language proficiency. We also offer an SA programme, in which Japanese students serve as “student assistants” to provide academic support to international students. In addition, almost two-thirds of all courses at the university have class sizes of 30 or fewer students. International students can communicate with other students easily and will see their Japanese language skills improve greatly.

A Variety of Events and Supports for International Students

In recent years, Gakushuin University has further raised its international profile with the establishment of the Faculty of International Social Sciences and significant increases in the number of overseas partner universities. Currently, around 250 students from a range of countries are enrolled at Gakushuin. We offer extensive supports to help international students with their studies and life at the university. Our International Centre plays a central role in leading these services. The International Centre lounge is a popular place for students to socialise and is frequented by many students daily.

International Centre

The International Centre assists students with their overseas studies and international exchange programmes. In addition to supporting students with their life in Japan and providing counselling on scholarships and grants, the Centre organises events for international students and provides additional support to enrich and enliven their experience at Gakushuin University.

Buddy Programme

“Buddies” provide day-to-day support to international students who have come to study at Gakushuin University from our overseas partner universities. Japanese students selected as buddies are available to talk with international students and become friends on and off campus.

Short-Term Homestay Programme

International students studying at the university stay between 1 to 7 nights with families of Japanese students who are registered as volunteer hosts with the International Centre. During their short stay, the students have opportunities to interact with Japanese people and experience Japanese culture.

A Campus Steeped in Japanese Traditions and History

It has been 141 years since the founding of Gakushuin and 69 years since the establishment of the university. Our historic buildings of value have been designated as “Registered Tangible Cultural Property Buildings”, and Gakushuin University Museum of History houses a collection of many valuable archives related to the Japanese Imperial Family and Gakushuin. You can learn and experience Japan's traditions and history right here on campus.

1847 | Beginning of Gakushuin

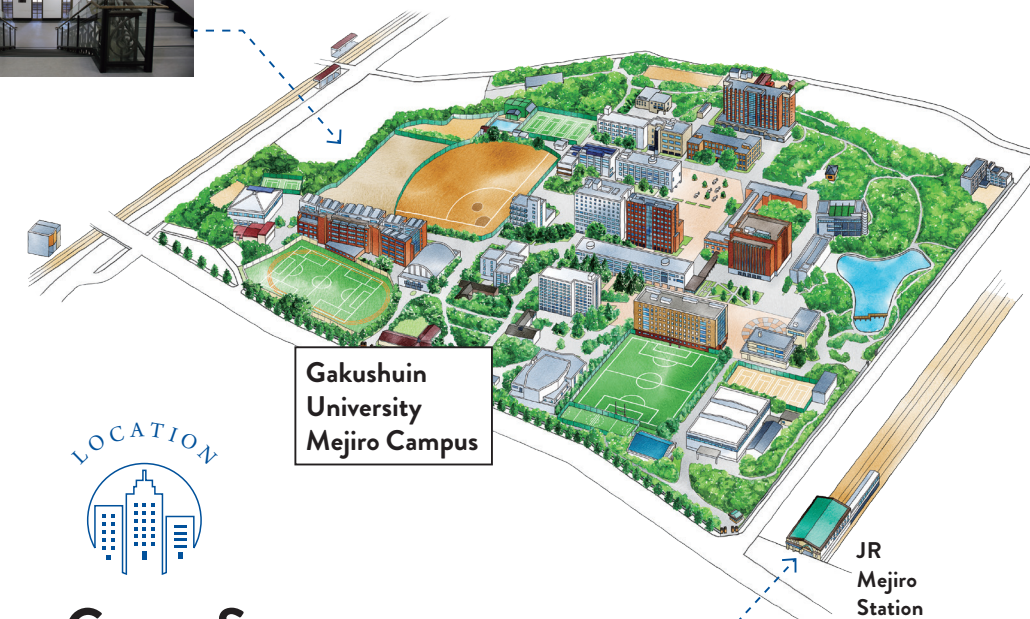

Gakushuin traces its origin to Kyoto in the final years of the Tokugawa period. In 1847, a school was established on the east side of Kyoto Imperial Palace to serve as an academic institution for the aristocracy. In 1849, Emperor Komei granted the “Gakushuin” plaque, and the school was named “Gakushuin”.

1877 | Founding of Gakushuin

In 1877, an imperial school was established in Kanda Nishiki-cho, and upon the granting of a plaque by Emperor Meiji it succeeded the name of Gakushuin in Kyoto. The current Gakushuin was founded at this time.

1949–Present | Establishment of Gakushuin University

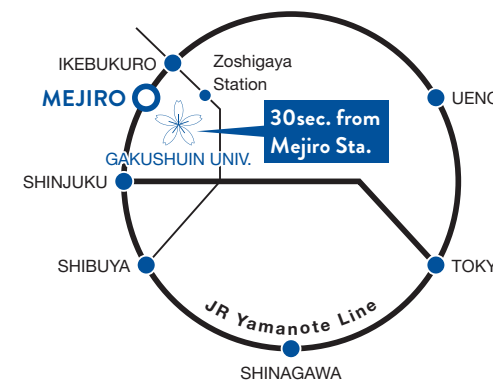

Founding President Yoshishige Abe noted in the Gakushuin University Charter that the university is characterised by “fostering international knowledge, mastering foreign languages, understanding practical knowledge about the world and domestic situations, and fusing together western and eastern cultures to promote cultural progress in Japan”.

Green Spaces in the Centre of Tokyo

Gakushuin University is in an excellent location. It is situated in the centre of Tokyo, Japan's largest city, making it easy to access the city's major train stations from the nearest Mejiro Station. It is also just a 30 second walk from the station. At the beautiful Mejiro Campus, with many green spaces extending across a large area in an urban setting, visitors can enjoy the landscape of the four seasons including cherry blossoms in the spring.
